Derek Banach came up in a mostly jazz environment, paying a lot of attention to tone and a personal vibe. Having steeped himself in the great acoustic tradition of jazz for many years, part of him still yearned to explore the magic and power of the electronic groove...

Derek has lived and played in Colorado and Italy, toured in Europe and the US, and toured Uganda as a music missionary.

Jeremiah Moore works with the imagistic and tactile qualities of sound. He approaches composition from the perspective of pure sound, choosing where to regard, and where to disregard, the integrity of found and improvised sources.

Jeremiah produces music and sound for theatrical and motion picture productions and radio. He lives in San Francisco.
